and seas, already rough, ran higher. And the sea itself, 8,400 feet deep at that point, presented what naval officers conceded would be an impossible rescue problem even if the vessel could be found. As an example of that problem, the navy estimated water pressure on the hull of the Thresher, if she is at the bottom, would be about 3,696 pounds a square inch. That probably is more than three times the stress the hull was built to withstand. Just how deep the Thresher was designed to go is a military secret, but the Navy doesn't even talk in terms approaching 8,400 feet. All it will say of the Thresh-+

Certain Marked Resemblances

Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Arizona Republican, may be heading into the bafflement that plagued Ohio's Robert A. Taft when he was the acknowledged leader not only of the Senate Republicans but Senate conservatives.

Sen. Goldwater must keep himself from being captured alive, stuffed and displayed over the mantel-piece of reactionaries as a trophy of their hunt for someone who believes as they do.

Sen. Taft had no more in common with reactionaries than he had with the "progressives" nestled around Henry A. Wallace. Even his conservatism had a fatal flaw.

He was susceptible to new evidence. He was firm about making up his mind when he thought he was right and equally firm about changing it when he was convinced he had been wrong.

HE RESPECTED his father's views on the importance of federal backing for public housing, so he lent his name to public housing legislation, to the consternation of many of his ultra-conservative backers.

He could not convince himself that any legal justification existed for the Nuremberg trials, so he blasted them in a speech at Kenyon College, to the consternation of all the people who wanted to teach the Germans a lesson they would never forget.

He could not stomach Harry Truman's violent reaction to the threat of a railroad strike, so he-the symbolic opponent of unionism, according to the union bosses-led the legislative fight to save railroad unionism from federal discipline.

Only when death had ended any further possibility of catching them off guard did the ultra-conservatives who regarded Sen. Taft as their prize trophy breathe easy.

This is what we suspect is going to be the ultra-conservatives' problem with Barry Goldwater. No man with his ebuillient sense of humor and clear perspective can be counted on to stay hitched in one place.

NO PUBLIC FIGURE with Sen. Goldwater's political savvy is going to let himself be committed in advance to act as front-man for organizations farther to the right of center than any of the backers of Sen. Taft. The same problem plagues public figures identified with left-of-center politics. They are never as extremist as their backers. They could not have become public figures if they had been at the outer extremities of Franklin D. Roosevelt never was more than a fraction as leftist as the people who captured him for their mantel piece.

Sen. Goldwater may be the exception that proves the rule, but it will be surprising if, instead of being coy when he disclaims movements to push him for the presidency, he is not striving to escape capture by people he could not tolerate as his masters.

Still Loyal To The New Deal

"We advocate an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of the federal government.

"We favor maintenance of the national eredit by a federal budget annually balanced and a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards."

Whose quotations are those? Do they sound like some ultra-conservative organization? Perhaps the Chamber of Commerce of the United States or the National Manufacturers Association?

Guess again. They are from the 1932 Democratic National Platform which launched the Roosevelt New Deal!

The quotations were recalled recently by

Letter From Max

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., that bitter foe of spending beyond government income and staunch defender of the balanced budget.

The occasion was a testimonial dinner for the senator, marking his 30 years in the Capitol. He and Franklin D. Roosevelt first took office the same day, both loyal to the New Deal platform.

The two soon were to part, however. Mr. Roosevelt kept his campaign pledge for economy for six months, Sen. Byrd recalled, then the nation "started on an orgy of deficit spending which has lasted until this day."

Times changed as the years rolled by . . . through the New Deal, the Fair Deal and now the New Frontier, all of which seemed to be in a race to see which could spend the most money above income.

Sen. Byrd did not change. He still is fighting a rear-guard, though generally losing, action. He has remained loval to that original New Deal platform which advocated a balanced budget and sound currency.

Dear Truman Twill:

This book I have been reading about life in America at the period when United States gained its independence has suddenly made me understand why, when everythings seems to go wrong, you long for the good old haleyon days.

It is true that the 1790s were a little before your time, but it is nice to think that period is what you are talking about when you remind us how trouble-free and simple life was then.

You sometimes get in a snit and can't speak civilly to anyone just because the sheep get loose, your car has a flat tire, the cord on the electric iron frays through and a short circuit blows a fuse in the basement, that leaky faucet still leaks right after you installed a new washer, a light switch in the house goes blooey, one of your zippers goes havwire, you crack the glass in your spectacles, the power mower won't start, the battery in your electric toothbrush goes dead, the boob tube blows out, your income tax is due, you lose a filling from a tooth, your shoelace is broken and your deordorant only kept you half-safe.

Well, this book about the good old days backs you up 100 per cent. Except for the sheep and maybe the shoelaces, they didn't have any of those dangfool gadgets in the

All they had was a one-room house about 18 by 20 feet, with an unheated attic in which the kids slept.

No electricity, no gas, no plumbing, no cars, no nothing except a knife, an ax, a rifle and a few expensive pans and kettles. Boy, those were the days. That was really

This one-room was something! Besides serving as a living room, dining room, bedroom, rumpus room, study, library, solarium, sunporch, music room, workshop, conservatory, it had a vat containing an unmentionable solution in which wool was soaked to remove grease. Smoked hams and bacon hung from the ceiling.

No one worried about feeling half-safe because any such offensive condition was scarcely noticeable in the competition. Besides, there wasn't any soap as we know it today and bathtubs were few and far between.

One thing in the book that puzzles me, though, is that it says family life then was not simple; it was complex. The husband and wife between them had to be all things, such as carpenter, trapper, hunter, woodchopper, farmer, meatcutter, expert in primitive animal husbandry, weaver, shoemaker, stoic and fireplace expert.

A fire was kept going almost in perpetuity in the fireplace because if the fire went out a new blaze either had to be brought from a neighbor's, or a new one kindled with flint, steel and tinder.

The fire in the fireplace was the only light in the room, except for the very wealthy, who could afford candles.

Lack of adequate lighting set the work day from dawn to dark and everybody went to bed soon after. No aspirins, tranquillizers or sleeping pills. Just fatigue.

Any day an early settler felt a mild frustration, he went out and shot squirrels. To get rid of a big frustration he shot a bear.

Next time I get up to your house be sure and show me that bearskin I always have admired so much, and tell me again how you stamped out of the house loaded for bear and came back with a dead one.

Faithfully yours, MAX

6 Battle Reds In British Guiana

By Victor Riesel

The name Vassily Kemensky is unknown in the United States and virtually unknown in his native Moscow - but he is the forerunner of the in vasion of British Guiana. perhaps soon to beasecond Cuba, bordering on oil-rich Venezuela and poverty - stricken, Communist-laden northeast Victor Riesel Brazil. Kamensky and three col leagues flew recently into British Guiana as a Soviet trade mission at the invitation of its pro-Soviet, pro-Peiping Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan. There also have been visits from East German and Czech "trade delegations," which have surveyed the little nation of half a million people.

Thus the Soviet mechanism of infiltration has begun operating. Russian money, rifles, ammo, grenades, flown in. Pro-Communist youth schools are being set up. Young Guianese - their fares paid for by Soviet "universities" -are leaving for cities behind the Iron Curtain.

IT SHOULD, therefore, come as no surprise if a northern slice of South America is Cubanized before we realize. But there are men with courage and there is a fighting chance - in the literal sense - that Jagan might not be able to pull a Castro.

Six of these courageous men have been trained here in the American Institute for Free Labor Development. They are now back in British Guinana where they are working with a rather fearless chap by the name of Richard Ishmael, president of the British Guiana Trades Union Council and general president of the anti-Communist sugar workers' union known as the Man-Power Citizens' Association.

A few weeks ago Ishmael told two aides of National Maritime Union (NMU) president Joseph Curran that the Communist international apparatus was steadily pouring batches of small arms into the country to keep power if the pro-Communist government is voted out in a future national elec-

March 9, that Ishmael met with Joe Curran's colleagues, Shannon Wall, NMU vice president, and Rene Lioeanjie, NMU coordinator of organizing for Latin America.

He told them that British Guiana's anti-Communist unions would try to stop the Soviet gun running. Ishmael said they would picket the Soviet and Cuban ships at the docks. Wall and Lioeanjie returned recently and passed this information on to me in an effort to stir support for the anti - Communist unions. Ishmael made good his promise last week. There was intense fighting in the dock area. It soon spread through the city. THE ANTI-COMMUNIST labor organizations are fighting for their lives. Jagan has organized opposition groups in an effort to take over British Guiana's organized labor. If he succeeds there will be nothing to stop Guiana from going Cuban. Realizing this, the American Institute for Free Labor Development - supported by U.S. labor and industry - rushed the training of six Guianese in Washington. This institute is directed by Serafino Romualdi, a veteran anti-Communist labor specialist.

A THIRD is George I. De-Peana, who has been assigned as education director to the Clerical & Commercial Workers Union usually a prime Communist target. He runs seminars. One of the subjects is democracy in the labor

A fourth is David R. Persaud. He is assigned to the Man-Power Citizens' Association, which the Communists have been trying to smash so they can take over the field. The association has more than half the union membership in British Guiana. Persaud's first task on returning from his training in Washington was to regain the membership lost to Jagan's Guiana Sugar Workers Union, the pro-Communist, government-sponsored outfit raiding the association. Because of Persaud's work most of the lost membership has been regained. A fifth trainee has succeeded in becoming general secretary of the Post Office Workers. A sixth is with the Transport Workers.

It's a pleasure to report we're giving the Communists a run for

What has lately aroused, on the other hand, a noticeable enthusiasm for Sen. Goldwater throughout the country is his forthright comments on the Cuban problem.

He has managed to sense correctly the true state of public opinion - the mood of the average voter. His criticisms of the administration's hesitancy and wavering policies, which he describes as timid, have won considerable applause.

BUT IT ISN'T any one issue that makes a candidate seem a plausible choice. It is, first of all, the impression he conveys of fundamental honesty and commonsense judgment. Next in importance is his penetrating analysis of all the basic issues.

In the case of Mr. Goldwater, there is a feeling that he has the courage of his convictions and understands the Republican party's attitude toward "New Dealism," "New Frontierism" and which harass businessmen and impair their confidence in economic progress - something necessary for industry to have if the economy is to expand and jobs are to be created to relieve unemploy-

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW

I believe the average citizen is beginning to wonder when the politicians throughout our state and federal governments are going to stop increasing taxes before they bankrupt every taxpayer in the country.

It is often said we elected them to various offices and it is the taxpayers' fault. But as we all know a great majority of these politicians make a career out of politics and live most of their lives off the taxpayers money. Then comes election time. There are two candidates to choose from for an office and very few people know these politicians and end up voting for name only. Then when they take office we have no further control over their actions. Instead of them being servants of the people, a great many of them act and talk like masters of peo-

In industry, the companies will hire efficiency experts to weed out the featherbedding and bring about economy in operations. But every one knows this is never done to bring about economy in the operation of our governments, which in turn would bring about a saving to citizens of this country.

A group of politicians thinks up some pet project, such as some superhighway or new government buildings, or passes a law giving some lobbying group subsidies and then finds the government they represent is running low on funds.

Then all they have to do is tell the taxpayer they need more money. So they reappraise everyones property to bring in more money and the average citizen has nothing to say, but to pay higher taxes. If he doesn't pay the taxes they, the politicians acting as the government, take over and dispose of your property to cover the taxes which they may have brought about by not trying to establish economy in the operation of their elected offices.

Then if the politician decides he wants a salary increase or a nice fat pension or higher expense account, he just goes ahead and raises it without asking the taxpayers if they think he is efficient enough to deserve an increase.

It would be a great system if every taxpayer could tell his employer when and how much the employer would pay him. It wouldn't be long until there wouldn't be any employers.

Consider retirement pensions, the average citizen can hope for no more than he can collect from Social Security, which may be from, may I say, $75 to $200 a month, which our government officials think is reasonable.

Then why do the taxpayers have to finance a pension of $20,000 to $25,000 a year for a retired president, army generals and fat pensions for many others in the political field? If the average American can live on $75 to $200 per month, why can't the politicians? They are only human beings, the same as every one else, and by so doing make it possible for taxes to be lower.

If these politicians were compelled by a law, which we don't have, to get approval from the citizens of this country for all the different laws and appropriations they want to make, I believe our governments wouldn't need so much money to operate on. Our present property tax system discourages people and makes a property owner wonder why he ever sacrificed the greater part of his life to pay for a decent home and then finds he doesn't own it because he is forced to pay rent on it to the state as long as he lives or, should I say taxed. It appears to me the government really controls every thing we have. I have read that there are places in this world where the people are not allowed to own anything and their governments control everything. Why should it be that way in America? If a property owner tries to keep his property neat and have a respectable neighborhood, he is penalized for doing so by increased taxes. You can complain to some of these politicians about high taxes and the first answer you get is the law says we have to do this and that. But after all who made the law! Of course, no one other than the politicians who never even asked the citizens if they wanted such laws passed. I firmly believe that all forms of property taxes should be abolished. Then when you work and pay for a piece of property you would be the real owner of it, which you should be and not the

In place of property taxes, we could have one income tax on every individual and every industrial income to finance the operation of our state and federal government. It would save the huge sums of the taxpayers' money being spent for reappraisals. It also would eliminate huge payrolls for various collecting departments. Yes, it would throw a lot of political appointees out of a job, but I think it is about time we practice economy in government and stop this idea of spending $150 on a $100 income.

With an income tax system for all revenue, everyone would be responsible for all special levies which they might approved to have added to their income tax. The present method permits all citizens to vote on levies, but only the property owner pays the bill.

I believe it is time we let all politicians, including our state and federal representatives, know we want economy in government, before we all go bankrupt. RAYMOND BONNELL R. D. 1

Keeping Faith with Customers . . .

WHAT ELSE but the good opinion of our customers can protect our reputation? Numerous people have reported to us some fantastic representations being made by agents for out-of-county and out-of-state Monument dealers, in their desperate efforts to obtain orders. Our advice is, contact your local dealer before you purchase. We suggest you visit our showrooms with a complete stock of quality Monuments and Markers for your selection. Thus, you actually see what you purchase. Moreover, if for any reason some dissatisfaction should arise, you know whom to contact. If later, a death date or additional inscription is needed, would a dealer from a distant state or county fulfill this obligation? We have served this community for forty years, and are devoted to the high ideals of Memorial Art. We invite you to consult us without the slightest obligation and no effort will be made to influence an immediate decision. P.S. We suggest you make your selection NOW for Memorial Day.

House Okays Wetzel's Bill

By WILLIAM S. VANCE

Review Correspondent COLUMBUS — Rep. Clarence L. Wetzel's bill to change the appellate procedure in state fire marshal cases cleared the halfway point in the Ohio Legislature Wednesday.

The Columbiana County Republican's bill, passed by the House 125-1 without debate now goes to the Senate for hearings.

The bill would give local courts jurisdiction in appeals from state fire marshal orders. It would eliminate the requirements that all fire marshal appeals be heard in the Franklin County Common Pleas Court in Columbus.

Speaking in behalf of the bill. Wetzel told the House the existing law puts "quite a burden on a property owner who has had his building condemned either to be repaired or torn down, especially in counties far distant from Columbus.' He noted that in Columbiana County, the property owner and his local counsel are required to travel about 165 miles to appeal an order. Generally, he said, assistance by Columbus counsel is needed, adding to the property owner's expense. Wetzel also was critical of a revision in the law that puts the fire marshal in the dual capacity of prosecutor and judge in initial appeal proceedings.

The bill, which provides for appeals to the court with jurisdiction in the county in which the the property owner lives, also would cut the cost of calling witnesses, Wetzel said.

Die In Xenia Blaze

XENIA, Ohio (AP) - A man about 65 years old and a 20-yearold girl were injured fatally in a fire in a two-story frame house early today.

Officials identified the dead as John E. Crawford and Margaret Ann Edwards, Miss Edwards was roomer in the house.

Both died of smoke inhalation. officials said.

Three children were rescued from a porch roof-Clarice Thomas, 7, Virginia Edwards, 12, and Sheila Ann Oldham, 14. Virginia Edwards was a sister of the dead girl. Officials did not know the relationship of the other children. Officials said Miss Oldham was treated for a cut on her hand suffered when she broke a second floor bedroom window to climb out onto the porch.

-Junior Editors Quiz on-ELECTRICITY

QUESTION: How does a transformer work and what is it used for?

ANSWER: "Transform" means to change. A transformer is a device which is generally used to change the voltage, or force, carried by an electric current, making this voltage either greater or less. How transformers work is shown in upper pictures. Alternating current (the kind generally used in houses) comes from the left (A) and makes several turns around an iron core inside a transformer. This creates a magnetic field which sends out lines of force, and these jump across to another wire coiled around the core to the right to produce in this coil another current. But since there are more turns in the right hand coil, the current leading out of it will be stronger in voltage. In picture (B) the right hand coil has fewer turns, and so the current going out to the right has less voltage. This "step-down" transformer is the kind used by the young folks in the big picture to operate their electric train, which works on less voltage than is carried by the house wiring system. "Step-up" transformers, as shown in (A), are used to send alternating current from power plants over long distances.

FOR YOU TO DO: Memorize these three words and you will understand your electric equipment better and have more fur: volt, a unit of electric force; Johm, unit of resistance to current; ampere, unit of electric current received. One volt meeting one ohm of resistance delivers one ampere of current.

Dear Heloise: I hate to brown, tiny meat balls! They seem to take ages. I was inspired one day method. I made my meat balls good old spaghetti, make lots of and placed them on an ungreased cookie sheet. I then put them and can be used for many trick I discovered the other day under the broiler for ten or fifteen minutes until they browned. I then turned them over and browned them on the bottom.

One can then proceed to cook them anyway they like. The meat itself will grease the foil on the cookie pan. The balls retain their dresses or others which constantly face and did not have to move shape far better and it takes less off the regular hangers.

One does not even need to use the curtains as often.
